

Field Advisor

Having been selling chemical fertilisers for the past 18 years and the only thing different that I could offer farmers was price and debate nutrient units in other products.

After some consideration I was looking for something that I could offer farmers that would make a beneficial change.

As some farmers in my area have been using some WMF products I did some research on the company and its products and to find a point of difference that would be beneficial to the farmer.

After having a meeting with Steve Frost and then Andrew Pauley I was offered a position with the company as a field advisor which I took without hesitation.

I am still studying and learning more of the positives with the use of mineral fertilisers and the important link that the microbes play in this whole system.

I am very excited that I can talk to farmers about this coming season on a system that is beneficial and not on price alone.
